

Review of Service User and Carer Involvement

Involvement in teaching, research and governance

Universities that train social workers, doctors and other health professionals should involve service users, patients and carers in their teaching, research and governance. How are you doing at this? Is it the right time to commission an independent review?

Achievements and recommendations

I will work with you to gather evidence from documents, interviews and surveys and then produce a report on your achievements and make recommendations for the future.

Why me?

I have been reviewing services since 1997 and have published over 80 items on empowerment and participation. In the last four years I have worked on public leadership in CLAHRC and the East Midlands Academic Health Science Network.

"Your independent report will help us build on our achievements and make significant progress towards an approach based on coproduction and real partnership."

Jonathan Lamley,
School Manager,
School of Health
Sciences,
University of Nottingham

For more information, contact

Peter Bates

Email: peter.bates96@gmail.com
Tel: 07710 439 677
Website: www.peterbates.org.uk

