Introduction

This directory lists the sports clubs in Nottingham City where people go for exercise but also friendship. Clubs that have their main meeting place in Broxtowe, Rushcliffe, Gedling or further afield do not appear. Sports facilities, such as gyms, which some people use in a solitary way, are listed separately at Sports and park facilities in Nottingham, UK. If the club's website, Facebook page or fixture list shows activity in the future or in the past three months, or if they have responded to an inquiry, then the club is deemed active. Please send updates and corrections to peter.bates96@gmail.com.

I have created this list as part of a project on community mapping. As well as learning how to find out about the local community, the purpose of creating this list was to check the extent to which other directories reflect the communities they represent at a point in time. You can read more about this in a series of linked papers, starting with Detecting dark matter.

It is hard to know how to list organisations which run multiple activities and teams. My guiding principle here is to identify a contact point, since further inquiries will yield additional information about eligibility, such as age or gender, fees, meeting times and so on. For example, the David Ross Sports Village serves students at the University of Nottingham, makes use of inhouse facilities and some outside of Nottingham City (as does their sailing club) and is listed just once here, despite hosting a total of 73 clubs in March 2024. Since many of the teams play in local competitions, they may also be able to help in brokering further connections.
